

Andrew Jones

Andrew Jones received his Master of Music in Viola Performance from the University of Maryland (UMD) while studying with Katherine Murdock. In the course of his time at UMD, Jones held a Teaching Assistantship and an Ensemble Assistantship through which he gave private lessons to music students, coached undergraduate ensembles, and performed solo and chamber recitals. He also participated in masterclasses from distinguished performers and teachers including Dan Foster, Sheila Browne, and Jeffrey Irvine.

During his time in the DMV area, Jones subbed with the York Symphony in PA, freelanced, and maintained a private studio. Additionally, he was a founding member and is the violist of the Iter Trio based in the DMV area. This past summer, Jones was invited to assist in managing the Music Fest Perugia international piano festival in Italy. Most recently, he accepted a position as the Artistic Operations Associate at Artist--Naples in Naples Florida.
